

Zoo news: this month's animal antics from round the globe - in pictures

17 May: New photo of the Borneo rainbow toad

After 87 years without a sighting, the Borneo rainbow toad, Ansonia latidisca, was rediscovered in 2011 as a part of The Search for Lost Frogs. This stunning new photograph by Robin Moore appears in a photo essay in the California Academy of Sciences' exciting new multimedia magazine BioGraphic. "I wanted to capture an environmental portrait that placed the toad in context of its natural habitat," says Moore, author of In Search of Lost Frogs.

Photograph: Robin Moore

